Breed Theatre.

Breed Theatre,
The photo-version of Edith Wharton's The House of Mirth, with an all-star cast, which is the feature at the Breed theatre today is a revelation in acting. It is one of the most worth-while productions ever reviewed by the writer and is worthy the highest tribute that can be paid in words. The play stands out as something distinctive and unusual, and both the direction and photography demands the highest praise. The picture was taken from the famous novel words. The play stands out as something distinctive and unusual, and both the direction and photography demands the highest praise. The picture was taken from the famous novel of the same name and written by the toted authoress. Edith Wharton, and was adapted for the screen by June Mathis and Albert Capellani. It is the story of a young girl, Lify Bart, played by Katherine Harris Barrymore, who has been rearred in luxury and then left penniless by her parents in the care of a wealthy aunt.

POETRY A PSALM OF MODERN LIFE. Tell me not in ragtime numbers Life is but a vaudeville joke; For the guy gets left who sumb or the guy gets left who siumbers. And the slothful gink goes broke.

We must make the page or bust, and at that we're always worried Lest we take some fellow's dust.

Lives of grabbers all remind us.

We must grab and graft and fleece.
Keeping one eye trained behind us.
Lest we're grabbed—by the police! Grabbed, perhaps, and sent to languish.
Where we'll weir a half and chain,
While the world mocks at our anguish;
Mocks us and takes heart again.

Let us then, be up and doing,
While the doing still is good.
For the guy whose wad we're wooing
Sure would do us—if he could!
